GRADUATE CREDIT PROGRAMS

Each summer the Indiana Council for Economic Education (ICEE) sponsors intensive, graduate-credit workshops for K-12 teachers. These workshops cover a variety of economic topics and take place at the ICEE’s University Centers. Teachers learn economic, basic business and financial concepts and develop curriculum units to use with their students. Thanks to our generous contributors, the ICEE offers full or partial tuition scholarships to those attending the workshops, which over the years have become the “flagship” program of the ICEE.

Two hundred seventy-five (275) Indiana teachers received scholarships to attend one of 18 intensive graduate-credit programs.

IN-SERVICE PROGRAMS

ICEE reached 2386 teachers and educators via regional in-service programs and intensive summer workshops. Teachers were trained in such programs as

• Energy, Economics, & the Environment
• Play Dough Economics
• Mini-Economy
• Teaching Economics Using Children’s Literature
• KidsEcon Posters
• Half-Pint and Pint-Size Economics
• Virtual Economics
• Money and Banking
• Chocolate Economics
• Mathematics and Economics
• Take Stock in Indiana
• Learning, Earning, and Investing
• International Economics

OLIN DAVIS AWARDS

The Olin W. Davis Awards for Exemplary Teaching of Economics in Indiana, sponsored by the Indiana Council for Economic Education (ICEE), are built on the foundation Professor Davis established and we honor him with this fitting tribute. These awards are funded by the Indiana Farm Bureau & Farm Bureau Insurance.

Award recipients are selected based on their professional training and teaching experience, classroom projects in economic education, their influence on school economic education programs, and their involvement in activities outside the classroom that promote economic education.

PAUL SAMUELSON ENTERPRISE AWARD FOR COMMUNITY LEADERS
Mike Brian, Indiana Michigan Power, was selected to receive our 2006 Paul Samuelson Enterprise Award because of his outstanding long-term commitment to economic education. Mike was instrumental in the creation of the Energy, Economics, and the Environment (EEE) curriculum and the implementation of the EEE workshops at IUSB, IPFW, and Ball State University based on this curriculum. These workshops are still being offered today.

Mike served for several years on the Executive Committee of the Indiana Council, serving as chairman for two years. He stepped down in 2005 due to reorganization of the company, “willing” his seat on the Executive Committee to Jim Butcher which helped to ensure continuation of funding for the EEE curriculum and training programs.

This award is given annually in honor of Paul Samuelson, a native of Gary, Indiana, who founded the Massachusetts Institute of Technology’s Graduate Department of Economics.

Winning entries are pictured throughout this report.

ECONOMICS CHALLENGE

The Indiana Economics Challenge is an opportunity for teams of four high school students to demonstrate their knowledge on a broad array of economics topics and subjects. The program is competitive and fun and offers an opportunity to travel and meet other students in an atmosphere where economics knowledge is tested and recognized. Students compete simultaneously at three Indiana sites, in one of two divisions, Adam Smith or David Ricardo.

The Adam Smith Division is for students enrolled in Advanced Placement (AP Micro, AP Macro, or AP Micro and Macro), International Baccalaureate (Pre-IB and IB), honors, two-semester, or any other advanced course in economics (including courses taught by a secondary teacher where college credit is earned). Students enrolled in a second economics or economics-related course must compete in the Adam Smith Division. The David Ricardo Division is for students enrolled in a one-semester (or less) general economics course or courses which include introductory economic concepts (social studies, business, personal finance, etc.).

The Adam Smith Division students are tested in areas of micro, macro, international economics and current events using a multiple choice, pencil and paper test for three rounds.

The David Ricardo Division students take a multiple-choice, pencil and paper test for three rounds. Students are tested in the same areas as the Adam Smith Division; however, the questions for the David Ricardo Division are chosen with greater emphasis on economic applications and less emphasis on economic theory than the questions for the Adam Smith Division.

Following the first three rounds, the top two teams in each division at each site meet in an oral Quiz Bowl to answer questions on a wide variety of economics topics. The winning teams of the oral Quiz Bowl from each division at each site have their written test scores compared to determine the state champions. State champions in each division travel to Chicago to compete against teams from other states in the Mid-West Regional Championship.

2006 Economics Challenge

The 2006 Economics Challenge competition involved a record number of 200 students (50 teams) competing for the right to represent Indiana at the regional competition in Chicago.

Winners at each of the three sites were:

Mishawaka site:
Adam Smith Division
First Place: St. Joseph High School, South Bend
David Ricardo Division
First Place: Homestead High School, Fort Wayne

Indianapolis site:

STOCK MARKET PROGRAM

15,361 students (3,824 teams) learned about saving, investing, and financial markets—with its risks and rewards—as participants in the Stock Market Simulation. The SMS competition, co-sponsored by eight newspaper-in-education programs across the state, culminated this year with a winner for the fall and spring state winners in the three divisions: elementary, intermediate, and high school.

In the fall of 2006, ICEE’s stock market program will get a fresh look and partner with the Foundation for Investor Education (FIE) in presenting The Stock Market Game™ statewide in Indiana. Together with the University Centers for Economic Education and NIE partners, this terrific program will offer teachers a new interface, more features, and expanded classroom resources. One important change includes the URL. The website for the new program is www.stockmarketgame.org.

Teachers can look forward to receiving new educational materials that will help them get the most out of the program. The Stock Market Game™ features a new teacher resource center. Teachers will be able to search for teacher materials based on grade level and their own understanding of the concepts. The Stock Market Game™ will provide a great educational experience for both students and teachers.

Our investor education program for middle school and high school teachers in Indiana for 2005-06 was conducted under an initiative called Take Stock in Indiana. This program, made possible by a grant from the Investor Protection Trust (IPT), provided teachers with standards based instruction and classroom materials developed by the National Council on Economic Education to teach students the importance of saving and investing. With this comprehensive investment education curriculum, students are introduced to the ins-and-outs of long-term investing. They take a critical look at investment opportunities—mutual funds, stocks, bonds, and more—and uncover strategies for building lasting wealth. The objectives of Take Stock in Indiana were to:

1. Develop and improve the skills and knowledge students will need to make investment decisions.
2. Provide an opportunity for students to practice investment strategies.

The Take Stock in Indiana program contained three initiatives.

1. Free regional workshops and school in-services.
2. Every participant received the standards-based curriculum, Learning, Earning, and Investing.
3. Investor Education Posters
   • Indiana Stock Market Program

To kick off the program, we mailed every middle and high school in Indiana two sets of colorful posters in mid September. The Investor Education Posters (funded by the Investor Protection Trust) are three posters that highlight key concepts that will help students become better investors. The Financial Literacy Posters are two posters that highlight economic principles and steps to save and build wealth. The IPT is a nonprofit organization devoted to investor education. Since 1993, the IPT has worked with the states to provide the independent, objective investor education needed by all Americans to make informed investment decisions. For more information about IPT visit, www.investorprotection.org.

ECON CAMP: AN INSTITUTE FOR HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS OF ECONOMICS

Each fall, high school teachers are invited to attend Econ Camp, held at Camp Tecumseh in Brookston. The overall purpose of this day and a half event is to improve economic literacy in Indiana, focusing on economic concepts identified in the Indiana Economics Standards. The Camp is an integral part of Indiana’s contribution to the National Campaign for Economic Literacy initiated by the National Council on Economic Education. There are three primary goals of the Camp program:

- Review and reinforce an understanding of economic concepts identified in the Economics Standards.
- Share best teaching practices relating these concepts to current public policy issues.
- Promote economics as an important part of the curriculum in the high school.

PRE-SERVICE

To ensure that new K-12 teachers enter the classroom armed with sound economics content and best teaching practices, ICEE continued initiatives to encourage Schools of Education to offer the undergraduate course, Economics for Future Teachers. The Purdue, IU Kokomo, and ISU Centers reached 229 education students with this three-credit course.

HARRINGTON AWARDS

These awards are presented annually in honor of Peter V. Harrington, the Executive Director of the Indiana Council for Economic Education from 1971-1997. His exceptional commitment and leadership built the Indiana Council into one of the strongest Councils for Economic Education in the country. Indiana’s 12 Centers for Economic Education (most organized by Peter), are central to our organizational strength. Each Center makes teacher training in economics and its pedagogy available within a 50 mile radius of any K-12 teacher in Indiana.

The 2006 award recipients are:

Overall Excellence ($3,000):
IU Northwest Center, directed by John Gibson.

EA Program and ICEE Program Initiatives ($1,500):
IUPUI Center, directed by Robert Harris

Number of Teachers Trained ($1,000):

OUR MISSION

The Indiana Council for Economic Education (ICEE) is a non-profit, educational organization located at Purdue University. Founded in 1954, the ICEE is a comprehensive partnership of leaders from business, labor, agriculture, education, and government dedicated to increasing economic literacy in Indiana. Its mission is to prepare students to become active citizens and productive members of our economy by providing them with the ability to make sound economic decisions.

Through a statewide network of regional University Centers, and in cooperation with the Indiana Department of Education, the Secretary of State Securities Division, the Indiana Educational Service Centers, and more than 50 EconomicsAmerica school corporations, the ICEE provides economic education training, materials, and consulting assistance to thousands of Indiana educators each year.
